Preface

Dear reader,

Office opened in Geneva

Thanks to your support, it was possible for Wilmer Hak, our Geneva Policy Officer, to take up his position in Geneva as of September this year. This fills us with great gratitude. Living- and office space were provided, and Wilmer has now been able to settle in. Read his article on how CCI's work is progressing there. We hope that your financial support will continue so that the Geneva post can be sustained.

WHO

Over the past quarter, CCI has been at the forefront of organizing high-level meetings related to the World Health Organization (WHO). Currently, the WHO is trying to implement mandatory measures rather than providing advisory guidance on international diseases. You can find information about the implications here and the role of CCI in this issue can be found in the article written by Sylvia, our Africa policy officer.

Summit of the Future

Getting an opportunity to speak at an international forum is tough for organizations. It was therefore special that the CCI could make a statement during an informal consultation on the 'Summit of the Future' through Sylvia. You can watch the video in the newsletter.

What's at stake in America and set-up CCI Canada

At the invitation of Falk Panel from Walker, Michigan, I was able to attend a rally there where Donald Trump spoke. Issues important to CCI came up, such as keeping men out of women's sports (creation order). In the article from our US board member, John Van Der Brink, you can read about the importance of the upcoming US elections on November 5 and their outcome. The trip to the US could be combined with appointments in Canada to set up a branch of CCI in that country. To be continued.

Europe

Various activities were also carried out in Europe, including a visit to the European Parliament to brief MEPs, including Bert-Jan Ruissen, on the events related to the WHO. All this and more in this newsletter.

Translation booklet Niilo and Päivi Räsänen

With permission of Niilo and Päivi Räsänen, CCI was allowed to translate their booklet 'What about Marriage' into Dutch. It will be released mid-October and will be presented at the Family Days in Gorinchem. Order the booklet here.

Upcoming events

We invite you in the Netherlands to a theme evening on the US elections on D.V. Oct. 24 in Bodegraven. George Roller, congressional pastor and undersigned hopes to speak here. In Canada, you are invited to a theme evening on the WHO power grab and how CCI is making the case against world governance on D.V. Oct. 10 in Chilliwack, BC, Oct. 15 in Coalhurst, AB and Oct. 16 in Coaldale, AB. See also: <https://www.christiancouncilinternational.org/events>

Dependence on our God

We acknowledge that all our work is dependent on our God. Therefore, we request your prayers for the progress and "success" of our work.

On behalf of the CCI team,

Fields of Work

CCI Opens Office in Geneva

By Wilmer Hak

Christian Council International can gratefully look back on a successful quarter. Several achievements have been made, in Namibia, we were able to support parliamentarians to ensure that traditional marriage remains protected. In New York, we were able to advocate for state sovereignty. Shortly said, we were able to break some of the attacks on traditional Christian values.

The biggest achievement however was the official establishment of CCI in Geneva, with a permanent office and representative at the Human Rights Council. We are humbled that we could make such an achievement. Thanks to all your support and prayers, we were able to achieve this vital position to protect life, family and freedom.

Relevance of Geneva

From the beginning, the CCI board and staff have been committed to opening an office in Geneva. Here, where the Human Rights Council, the World Health Organization, and the United Nations Treaty Bodies are located, many human rights issues are being discussed and unfortunately, also altered. It is very often at this place that the value of life, family and freedom is undermined. This may happen through several mechanisms, the first and most important one is through resolutions.

Resolutions are non-binding commitments made by States which reflect the political will and commitment of Member States. At first sight, we might be relieved that it is not legally binding, but these documents are unfortunately often used as a tool for political pressure. Many delegates are pressured to sign commitments that often do not align with domestic legislation and values.

This is often done through the inclusion of (non-exhaustive) loaded terms. These terms might look innocent at first hand, but when closely observed, they relate to all kinds of unethical policies.

This happens regularly with abortion, despite abortion having no legal basis in binding international law, even the opposite, many resolutions still refer to it as a human right via misleading terminology. Diplomates are often unaware of this and pressured by NGOs, Member States and the United Nations to agree with the resolution. When being adopted, national stakeholders can misuse the resolution locally by opening abortion clinics.

Another dangerous aspect with resolutions is that they can become legally binding over a certain period of time. The consequence will then be that abortion is regarded, worldwide, as an inherent human right. To prevent this from happening, legal support is needed to help the delegates make the right decision.

New Opportunities

With the permanent office in Geneva, the CCI has new opportunities to legally support the delegations and thereby the national policies of Member States. We can now be present during most negotiations at the Human Rights Council on these resolutions and during the publication of all other kinds of reports. There we can draw attention to these issues and call for change.

The office can do this through several tools. First and foremost through research. Gathering legal evidence is necessary to show the strength of our values, both from a moral and a legal side. This research also helps us to be aware of what is at stake and what the best response to the situation at hand is.

The second tool the office uses is reaching out to diplomats with the concerns we have. We often face diplomats who are unaware of the language in the resolution. Helping them will guide them through the negotiations and give them the balanced information to make a proper decision when voting.

It also happens that a diplomat does not vote or negotiate in line with its national legislation. This often happens due to the pressure put on them by other organizations of the United Nations. Informing the national parliament or ministry of foreign affairs will help to release that pressure from the diplomat whereby he will operate more in line with the national legislation and values.

Another useful tool for the office is that being in Geneva ensures not only that we can engage more with the diplomats, but also with the human rights system itself. Reports can be presented and submitted to a wide audience on all sorts of topics, including the legality of abortion, state sovereignty and the freedom of religion.

The office also has the opportunity to organize events, speak publicly at negotiations and interact with human rights experts from the United Nations about the human rights situation in certain countries. This often entails situations where abortion or euthanasia is promoted as a human right or when the freedom of religion is not explicitly being mentioned in international documents.

Conclusion

Shortly said, the Christian Council International has widened its opportunities and accelerated its engagement with all kinds of stakeholders. Besides God, we thank all of you for making this milestone possible. On the short term, the office is looking to establish itself more and expand itself to ensure that CCI will become and remain a permanent beacon of hope.

For all of our donors, big or small, we once again want to show our appreciation. Thanks to the contributions made. Through that CCI can continue to protect Life, Family and Freedom on a world stage.

CCI's Global Advocacy Highlights

By Sylvia Mesesi

The past three months were not only busy for the Christian Council International but also for other international organizations. Many important international documents were discussed and passed. It was especially a pivotal time for two major international documents that reached headlines in the news for the past two years.

That these documents, the Pact for the Future and the Pandemic Agreement, were so long in the headlines, is not without a reason. Many provisions contained serious negative implications for world sovereignty and Christian values.

Pandemic Agreement

The pandemic Agreement was one of the main issues for the Christian Council International in the past three months. With several like-minded organisations, weekly calls were organised to strategise how to raise awareness among state representatives. Several projects were set up to protect life, family and freedom at the World Health Organization.

The agreement itself was drafted by the WHO to better prepare the world for future pandemics. In the past three months, some crucial negotiations took place that redirected the course of this Agreement. Mpox, American Elections and growing distrust in the powers of the WHO all resulted in an acceleration of the agreement. Only in that way, the WHO will be able to finalise the document.

Through this acceleration, many important issues remained unnoticed by representatives. The mechanisms put in place by the agreement, which includes a stronger WHO that sets out when there is a pandemic and how countries must respond to that, must be addressed. Many of the recommendations will include vaccine mandates, travel restrictions and other personal freedom-infringing policies.

The possibility of the WHO determining which health products are relevant is also very concerning. Especially since abortion kits and services can be unlawfully labelled as 'relevant health products'.

This can all become a reality in less than two years if nothing changes. The CCI is therefore working around the clock and monitoring all updates closely to address these concerns. Raising awareness among policymakers and supporting them to advocate for change has also been undertaken, and will continue.

Pact for the Future

The past quarter was also crucial for the Pact for the Future, another document that is practically legally binding with the main purpose of redirecting state sovereignty. The only difference however is that this document has already been adopted and therefore will influence world policy.

The aim of the Pact was to better prepare and reflect the commitments of the United Nations, and all Member States, for the future. The fact that this document reflects an unlimited call for social engineering and fails to concretely call for the important role of religion, are some of the many problems.

The main issue in this document is however similar to that in the Pandemic Agreement, as it involves the set-up of new mechanisms that could infringe on sovereignty. This means that, again, United Nations unelected and non-transparent systems can redirect sovereignty from Member States.

This was specifically visible in the fact that the Pact called for giving the Secretary-General new powers to coordinate a global response to a global shock. These shocks include climate emergencies, wars and financial downturns. With this new mandate, it is the United Nations that can coordinate the responses to these shocks and could redirect the 'multilateral system' as they call it. State sovereignty is again undermined in this approach since it will be the Secretary-General who interacts with relevant stakeholders to respond to the shock.

The new censorship mechanisms to address so-called misinformation and disinformation, the promotion of digital IDs and other close feedback mechanisms from the United Nations to Member States are other ways whereby the United Nations violates national and personal sovereignty. These mechanisms can also be used to pressure Member States to uphold the 'recommendations' the United Nations sets out.

Luckily, some of the text was weakened in its language, although it was a close call. The United Nations tried to adopt the Pact via a silent procedure whereby no clear insight was given in the Pact itself, the amendments and the positions of states. Advocating was therefore difficult. Fortunately, CCI was able to give an online statement on several family and freedom-infringing articles and helped to advocate on this topic at a global scale.

Conclusion

Shortly said, the past three months were not only crucial for the United Nations but also for Christian Council International. Although the United Nations still pursues some legitimate goals, we are highly concerned that such procedures and documents could occur more often in the near future.

CCI will therefore remain committed in the future to monitor and advocate in light of our values at a global level. Only in that way, the priceless values of life, family and freedom can remain protected.

Present at a rally with Donald Trump at Falk Productions in Walker, Michigan

Henk Jan van Schothorst:

Was a great experience to attend on invitation an entertaining rally from President Donald J. Trump at #FalkUSA in #GrandRapids #MichiganState. Themes passed by like: no man in women's sports, jobs, no tax on tips, overtime, inflation, border, immigration, Kamala's incompetence, etc.

The direction of Title IX, for example, and the gender issues it faces will depend on who is elected in November. Read this in the article by our board member in the US, John Van Der Brink:

Title IX and Its Impact on American Schools
By John Van Der Brink

Title IX states that “No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.

1. What is a Title IX?

Title IX is a civil rights law that bans sex discrimination against students, employees and others at public schools, colleges and universities that receive federal funding. Violators can be prosecuted for any acts that provide favorable treatment to some or exclude from participation on the basis of sex. Today it has become a powerful tool used to introduce and promote many immoral practices in our nation’s schools and in society.

2. What is the history of Title IX?

It started out in the 1970s as legislation that provided women equal access to college admissions and to certain sports competitions. Since then, it has mushroomed into many areas including laws related to sexual harassment and violence, especially on college campuses. More recently, it has been used to carve out a place to protect and promote sexual orientation and gender identity. Currently it is used as a political football with Democrats trying to enlarge its definitions to promote a liberal ideology, while Republicans are trying to restrict its impact somewhat.

3. What position regarding Title IX did former Secretary of Education Betsy de Vos take under the Trump administration?

She saw that Title IX was being used as a convenient weapon to accuse and prosecute many people who were accused of sexual harassment. By restricting the definition of harassment, many of the bogus cases of the past were avoided. This was interpreted by the Left as an attempt to provide legal discrimination against the LGBTQ+ community.

4. What did the Biden administration do in regard to Title IX in April, 2024?

It redefined and rolled back some of the reforms of the Trump administration. Specifically, it redefined sex to include issues related to gender identity, sexual identity, and sexual orientation. Teachers now are afraid of lawsuits for calling students by their biological gender or their real pronouns. These alternate lifestyles are now being celebrated instead in our nation's school. This has resulted in redefining discrimination to include gender identity and sexual orientation.

5. What is the legislative status of Title IX today?

It has become a political football for and against a liberalizing/conservatizing influence in our schools and culture. Trump and Harris are on the opposite ends of this spectrum. The direction of Title IX and the gender issues it is related to is dependent on who gets elected in November.

6. Are Christian schools affected by Title IX?

So far, Title IX controls only those colleges, and public schools that receive government funding. If a school that does not receive government funding, it is exempt from the ruling of Title IX provided the religious teaching of the school contradicts Title IX protections. But with the progressive trends promoted by the Harris campaign, those protections are likely to be challenged. Elections matter – they have a trickle affect which reach into every corner of our society.

Visit to Geneva – September 9, 2024 – Human Rights Council
 Together with our CCI Geneva Representative Wilmer Hak we had a fruitful and productive day on the start day of the month-long 57th session of the Human Rights Council. There is a lot of work to be done on left-liberal themes such as abortion and overconfident gender self-determination.

Bert-Jan Ruissen - MEP, Wilmer Hak and Henk Jan van Schothorst in the European Parliament Brussels

Visit to Brussels – September 10, 2024 – MEPs informed about the WHO Today, together with CCI-Geneva, we took the opportunity to inform MEPs in Brussels about Why the WHO is the last organization that can be trusted with the health of the world: Reasons to reject Binding Pandemic Treaty & amendment of international health directive.

Alarming Issues Regarding the New WHO Pandemic Response Mechanisms:

- ❑ Adopting the amendments to the International Health Regulations (IHR) in an illegal manner, by not complying with the review requirement of four months before the Amendments can be submitted to the Health Assembly. (Article 55(2) IHR).
- ❑ Creating economic disruption and exacerbating current international inequalities and national debt, by building a massive surveillance network for pathogens with a history of causing only minor outbreaks and lowering the threshold for interventions and mass vaccination. (Articles 12, 13 and 20 Pandemic Agreement (PA)).
- ❑ Reducing the funds allocated for high-priority health risks in low-income countries, due to misinterpreting pandemic risks. The projected budget is ten times more than that of malaria and other diseases, and comprising 25-50% of annual official health development assistance. These useful resources will now be allocated to minor and theoretical risks. (Articles 12(2) and 20 PA).
- ❑ Deteriorating the freedom of speech, religion, and independent research by calling on member states to strengthen their address against 'misinformation and disinformation' on public health risks. (Annex 1 para 41 and 63 IHR and Article 18 PA).
- ❑ Portraying vaccines, QR-codes and travel restrictions as the best way to tackle a pandemic without leaving space for traditional, ethical, democratic or religious objections. (Article 36, Annex 6 IHR and the Preamble and Article 5 PA).
- ❑ Undermining healthcare sovereignty by subjecting it to the Regulation, by reducing it to a principle, or making it subject to the Regulations. (Article 3(4) IHR, Preamble PA).
- ❑ Making it impossible for nations to make reservations on certain issues, by deciding that some reservations are incompatible with the objective of the Regulations, and therefore can be rejected after the ratification period by the WHA. (Article 62(9) IHR).
- ❑ Circumnavigating cultural and religious approaches concerning reproductive control measures by misusing health emergencies, in a way that:
 - o Controversial Sexual and Reproductive Health Rights (SRHR) methods are defined as essential health products by committing States to a One Health Approach and a Universal Health Coverage that covers primary health services, which also encompasses controversial SRHR methods like abortion. (Preamble and Articles 6(1) PA).
 - o Stakeholders who promote non-consensual methods of reproductive control can utilize WHO-coordinated mechanisms to distribute their "health" products because the term "relevant" is non-exhaustive. It therefore encompasses 'relevant' stakeholders such as the Center for Reproductive Rights (CRR) and other bodies of the United Nations like ECOSOC that promote non-consensual methods of restricting reproduction. (Article 1 and 13(8 and 9) IHR and Articles 5(1) and 13(1) PA).
 - o Essential health products are facilitated based on 'public health needs': A new vague term which the Director-General will periodically review and update. (Article 13(8) IHR and Article 13(1) PA).

CALL TO ACTION:
 1. Refuse to ratify the IHR amendments, reservations are too unstable to be maintained after the ratification period.

Alarming Issues Regarding the New WHO Pandemic Response Mechanisms:

2. Recognize that the WHO with this power is a threat to national sovereignty and democratic rights because they will decide when, how and with which values member states must tackle a pandemic.
3. Insist the WHO to stay within its internationally accepted legal borders.
 Do not accept the argument that this new framework provides equitable access to vaccines. These documents give the WHO, together with other stakeholders such as CRR, authority to distribute controversial SRHR products at any moment they think it is necessary without considering national law and other more prominent health issues.

Christian Council International in a nutshell

LIFE

What's at stake:

The EU wants to standardize abortion laws, LGBT promotion and sexualizing education internationally, here in a binding trade treaty with a group of 79 African, Caribbean, and Pacific (ACP) countries, more than 1 billion people. But education and health are matters which belong to national competencies. By pressuring these nations, the EU is subverting sovereignty and Christian values.

What we do:

We alert key leaders in ACP countries and in the EU so that complying with this pressure is prevented. Freedom to enact own legislation must be preserved.

FAMILY

What's at stake:

Western countries are trying to use the UN to add a new term to categories protected by nondiscrimination policies. This term is "sexual orientation and gender identity" (SOGI). Proponents would like to define gender as a feeling, a self-chosen identity, and not as a biological distinction. This new gender ideology denies the Biblical creation order.

What we do:

We participate in public discussions at the UN and lobby for worldwide respect for Biblical directives on marriage and the family.

FREEDOM

What's at stake:

Freedom of education, of religion, and of speech is under increasing international pressure, especially in the EU and the United States. Finnish Christian politician Päivi Räsänen is on trial for inciting hatred because of her expressed Biblical views on homosexuality and marriage. In a similar vein, Hungary is also under attack over its child protection laws.

What we do:

We stand up and publicly defend these freedoms. We provide moral and informational support to individuals and countries under attack for their Christian beliefs and culture.

What we achieve:

ACP-EU Treaty

National Sovereignty Secured

1. Due partly to our efforts to alert EU and ACP member states about serious content problems, the signing of the EU-ACP Treaty has been delayed, already for 2 years.
2. We spoke in the European Parliament to identify problems that would result from passing the Treaty. We also drafted written questions for the European Commission to answer.
3. Through our African office, we supported ACP Members of Parliament by asking critical questions during the EU-ACP Parliamentary Assembly.

President of Malawi with Henk Jan van Schothorst

United Nations

Norm Creation Order Maintained

1. Through our consultative status, we bring a Christian voice to the United Nations meeting rooms and actively monitor the ongoing agenda.
2. We managed to work with supporters to keep sexual orientation, gender identity, sexualizing education, and LGBT promotion out of norm-setting resolutions.
3. We help to prevent abortion from becoming an international human right.

Mark Den Hollander
CCI US representative to UN

Hungary - Finland - USA

Defense of Christian Freedom Supported

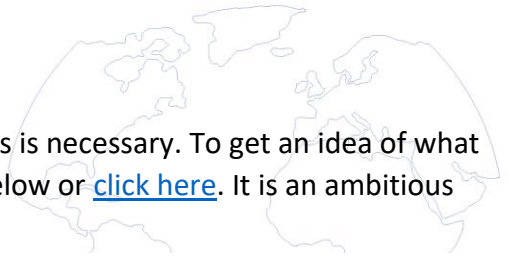

1. By supporting Hungary's defense of Christian values, we help to prevent the EU from reaching European and international consensus on pro LGBTQ+ and gender ideology.
2. Through our support of the Finnish politician Päivi Räsänen, awareness has been raised in the EU and member states that the Bible is on trial.
3. With our CCI branch in the US, a policymaker network is being formed for the defense of freedom of education and of religion.
